Key Component Challenges

The Division of Alaska Wildlife Troopers (AWT) is a statewide law enforcement agency. The director provides management decisions and policy direction to all division personnel on a daily basis. New trends in fish and game resource use must be analyzed and programs adjusted accordingly for best deployment and coverage of field programs. This assures that the most valuable resources are protected and the public interest best served.

The director of the Alaska Wildlife Troopers has a major role in implementing statewide fish and game law enforcement policy. The director's staff is responsible for administering the division's budget and the deployment of equipment and supplies statewide to provide the best protection of natural resources. Balancing law enforcement service needs of various areas of the state with the commissioned officers and dollars available requires constant review and evaluation. Under collective bargaining agreements, the director's staff must devote a good deal of time to considering the transfer of individual officers, their educational and career development needs, and their training, recognition and discipline.

AWT troopers are the sole department representatives in many rural communities and they are frequently called upon to assist their counterparts in AST. With these duties comes a higher expectation and complexity of service that can understandably interrupt resource protection duties. Preparing and managing troopers for both the public's safety and resource protection is challenging, particularly as inflation erodes budgets. Even more careful planning must go into assignment of assets, personnel, vehicles, aircraft, and vessels. The majority of new AWT troopers have little experience and knowledge in the complexities of fish and game enforcement. The department must continue to emphasize training to assure new transfers into the division and new hires are able to maintain essential public safety and resource protection services. With shortages of labor, continual effort must be given to ensure the best protection of natural resources. This includes the deployment of personnel and equipment to specific locations during peak periods of use.

Significant Changes in Results to be Delivered in FY2010

The division will focus on providing training to its members that emphasizes the core services of the division.

Major Component Accomplishments in 2008

The AWT Director's Office directly and indirectly shares in the accomplishments of all the components within the division.
